

ArtsWeek Event on Friday, February 22
Lecture by Dana Rabin, Ph.D.
Kinsey Institute Gallery Tour

The Kinsey Institute is pleased to present a lecture by University of Illinois historian Dana Rabin and a gallery tour for ArtsWeek 2008.

Dr. Rabin will discuss her research in a talk titled :
“The Sorceress, the Servant, and the Stays: Sexuality, Race, and Politics in Eighteenth-Century Britain”

5:30 Friday, February 22, in Morrison Hall 007.

A guided tour of the “Women of Pleasure” exhibition in the Kinsey Institute Gallery will follow the lecture.

“Women of Pleasure” explores the depiction of women in 18th and 19th century European erotic art and literature, using artworks, photographs, and books from the Institute’s extensive collections.

ArtsWeek, an annual Indiana University-Bloomington community winter arts festival, celebrates its 24th year from February 20 – March 1, 2008. ArtsWeek showcases the city’s many arts organizations along with performers and artists from the IU Bloomington campus in new events, enhanced performances, and presentations of new works. Funded by the IU Office of the Vice Provost for Research, ArtsWeek 2008 focuses on “Politics and the Arts,” examining how politics shapes artistic expression, or suppresses it, and how various art forms represent political points of view. For more information on ArtsWeek 2008, go to www.artswweek.indiana.edu.

Lecture by Dana Rabin on Friday, February 22, 5:30 pm, in Morrison Hall 007, followed by tour of Women of Pleasure exhibition, 6:30 pm, Kinsey Institute Gallery, Morrison Hall, 2nd floor. Refreshments will be provided.

Women of Pleasure* will be on view in the Kinsey Institute Gallery from January 18 through April 4, 2008. The Kinsey Institute Gallery is open 2 to 4 pm weekdays. Admission is free. Visitors should be 18 years of age or older, unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The Kinsey Institute

Morrison Hall / Indiana University

Bloomington, Indiana 47405

812-855-7686 / FAX 812-855-8277

www.kinseyinstitute.org